Safety is 'must' during displays

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKIE
MCN Staff Writer

With the fireworks season and the Fourth of July quickly approaching several public authorities collaborated recently to educate the public on the hazards of illegal fireworks.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF), Michigan State Police (MSP), Forensic Science and Fire Marshall Divisions, Detroit Police Department (DPD) and the Detroit Fire Marshall's office expressed hope that the holiday season continues to be a safe celebration not a tragedy that could have been avoided.

Fireworks in any hands can be dangerous if the proper measures aren't taken to ensure the safety of those around you, the officials said. Several safety plans should be exercised when purchasing and handling fireworks.

"First, recognize that all fireworks present a risk to people and property," said Special Agent-in-Charge Stanley E. Zimmerman, ATF, Detroit Field Division. "Second, never buy or handle items with street names like M-80, M-100 or silver salute (M-1000). These are illegal explosive devices - not fireworks - which can explode without warning, and have killed many times."

Annually more than 12,000 adults and children suffer from fireworks related injuries in the United States. Law enforcement officials hope the public does not confuse illegal explosive devices with Class C common fireworks. Common fireworks contain small traces of pyrotechnic material that identify the producer and come with safety precautions regulated by the Consumer Product and Safety Commission (CPSC).

Other illegal fireworks prohibited by the Michigan State Police include bottle rockets, silver salutes, Roman candles, and firecrackers.

Captain Wade Schaefer of the Michigan State Police Fire Marshall Division encourages Michigan residents to enjoy the Fourth of July by letting the professionals put on the show.

"No private citizen can match what the professionals can put in the skies," said Schaefer.

ZBA to pick new chairman

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Who will replace veteran Romulus Zoning Board of Appeals Chairman Norman McLenon?

McLenon shocked his fellow board members and the audience near the conclusion of the June 7 ZBA meeting, when he announced his resignation from the board.

McLenon, who has been a ZBA member for about two decades and chairman for the last 12 years, cited personal reasons for his resignation.

He said later he has been planning to resign for the past four to six months, but was looking for the right time to do it.

McLenon only last year was named head of the Romulus School District transportation department and said those additional responsibilities are part of the reason for his stepping down from the ZBA post.

A new board member will need to be selected prior to July 5, when the ZBA will hear zoning interpretation requests from Environmental Disposal Services, (owners of a planned non-hazardous liquid injection well project).

It is quite possible that either one of two ZBA alternate members, Mary Collins or Brookier Edwards, could be named to fill the spot. Or the advisory committee could recommend a different person.

The advisory committee consists of Councilmen Jimmie Raspberry, Ellis Pennington and Randolph Gear.

Both Collins and Edwards reportedly are opposed to the injection well.

Pennington said he favors the naming of Edwards to the ZBA since it currently has no African-American members to date. No such statement has yet to be released from either Raspberry or Gear.

McLenon ironically was praised by both sides for his fair and controlled handling of the hearings of the controversial injection well application.

Some residents even went so far as to say they hoped McLenon would run for mayor.

But McLenon says he has no political ambitions and more than two decades of public service is enough for him right now.

On July 5 the ZBA will also have to elect a new chairman. Political insiders think that the post may go to Kref, who currently is a candidate for the city council and has been one of the most out-spoken critics of the planned environmental well.

McAnally, Oakley set for rematch in November

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The long rumored rematch between Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally and her predecessor, former mayor William M. Oakley will apparently be conducted this November.

Oakley announced last Thursday night that he definitely has decided to run for the city's top office. He will have to file his petitions with the City Clerk's office by no later than June 20.

Oakley, who is an independent in the construction field, said he made the decision last Wednesday night, after talking with a number of people who had encouraged him to run for mayor again.

Oakley was one of the first councilmen elected in Romulus in 1970, as the city's charter was first approved by a scant margin of 62 votes.

Among those also elected to that first city council ironically are current office holders.

Jimmie Raspberry and Ellis T. Pennington.

Oakley served on the council for seven years and was elected to three terms as mayor and actually was defeated by McAnally in 1983.

Oakley also served on the Romulus School Board for over one term, first filling out an unexpired term of an incumbent and then being elected to a full term.

The former mayor said he has not drawn up any campaign platform, issues or priorities yet.

Oakley also has been a member of the Romulus Rotary Club for 34 years.

One of the most often asked questions this past week, is "Will McAnally and Oakley field opposing slates of council candidates?"

The other is "Will incumbent Councilman Noah 'Pete' Bergeron seek another term?"

Bergeron has been telling friends in recent weeks that he didn't plan to seek another term on the council. But since candidates are known to change their minds, no one is taking that statement as a final one.

A wide range of council candidates also are preparing to battle for the seven council seats. At least 15 reportedly have taken out petitions for the election and if all file a primary will need to be conducted on Sept. 12.

To date those who have filed include McAnally for mayor and Councilmen Michael Prybyla and William Wadsworth and challengers Debra Romak, William Crova, Stanley Kref.

This year's election campaign is expected to be one of the most controversial and divisive, political insiders agree, as the community already is seriously split over the environmental well issue.

Others are asking that the city conduct a referendum on whether citizens favor a possible casino located within the city or not.

200 presented 1995 diplomas

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Two hundred graduating members of the Romulus High School Class of 1995 were urged Saturday to remain focused on the challenges of the future, while remembering the commitment given to them in recent years by their parents and teachers.

The class valedictorian Bobby Craft began his brief talk by asking his fellow class members to "give a round of applause to that parent, guardian or special person in your life, who has helped you make it to where you are today."

He praised Romulus teachers "who have given their time, patience and understanding" to provide us with the skills needed to face the challenges of the world.

He cited them also for "teaching us how to interact with each other by working together on various projects and symposiums."

Craft thanked the parents of the Class of '95 for "supporting us in everything we have tried to accomplish. Whether we succeeded or not, your support was always there."

Craft concluded his talk by quoting Frederick Douglass, noted U.S. black leader and journalist of the 1800s.

"Those who profess success

Those who profess success and deprecate failure are (like) men who want crops without plowing or want rain without thunder or lightning.

- Bobby Craft
quoting Frederick Douglass and deprecate failure are (like) men who want crops without plowing or want rain without thunder or lightning," he quoted Douglass as saying.

"They want the ocean without the roar. The struggle may be a moral one or a physical one or it may be both. But it must be a struggle. Success concedes nothing without demand; it never has and it never will," Craft said.

Craft accumulated a 4.016 grade point average. He plans to major in chemical engineering at Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga. Craft was the recipient of a Presidential Scholarship from Morehouse College and scholarships from the Wayne-Romulus Optimist Club, the American Chemical Society, Optimist Club Foundation of Central Detroit, Spanish Department Award and Kiwanis Scholarship Award.

Salutatorian Kalani Mitchell, who earned a 3.977 grade point average, also addressed the class but the text of her speech has not yet reached the offices of the Romulus Roman.

Following a rendition of Pomp and Circumstance by the Romulus High School Band, Superintendent Dr. William Bedell introduced school board members.

Assistant Principal Michael Teasdale introduced salutatorian Kalani Danielle Mitchell and Assistant Principal Melvin Kimbrough introduced valedictorian Bobby Janay Craft.

The 1995 diplomas were awarded by Principal Thomas Dolan, as well as Kimbrough, Teasdale and Jill Alvery and Don Foley.

Class President Shannon Warren offered the farewell from the Class of 1995.

The high school band concluded the ceremony with Ceremonium by John Edmonson.

Ex-court official begins prison term

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Former 34th District Court Administrator Nancy Schuette sentenced to a one to 10 years prison term on June 7 by Recorder's Court Judge Craig Strong, reportedly has begun her incarceration period.

The sentence followed her conviction of one count of embezzlement of court funds.

Schuette had been charged with three embezzlement counts, but the jury failed to reach a verdict on two of the other complaints.

Schuette, 41, of Belleville, who now is in the custody of the Michigan Department of Corrections, was found guilty of stealing $600.

But Assistant Michigan Attorney General Mark Blumer revealed an audit of court financial records shows that up to $270,000 was missing.

During the trial Blumer said the state was not attempting to show that Schuette took all the missing money.

The state provided financial records that revealed periodic deposits were made to the former administrator's personal bank account only days after funds were taken from the court deposits.

The state had witnesses testify that Schuette illegally voided certain court deposits over a period of years.

Mayor's Drug Unit seeks golfers

There is still time and openings for area golfers to sign up for the Mayor's Drug Task Force's eighth annual golf outing at Shady Hollow Golf Course on June 23.

Funds raised by the $50 per golfer outing are used to support drug prevention programs within the city, McAnally said.

This past year $15,000 in grants were presented to area drug prevention programs within the city.

The golf outing will have a shotgun start at 8 a.m. Co-ed four person teams will be permitted.

For tickets and more information contact Hafeeza Khalifa in the mayor's office by calling 942-7571.

Prayer gathering slated July 4

A July 4 ecumenical prayer gathering to praise God and seek unity for the city, state and nation will be conducted at Elmer Johnson Park in Romulus under the direction of Pastor Brad Lewis of the Community United Methodist Church.

Lewis is sending letters to various local churches alerting them to the prayer gathering that will kick-off a day of community activities at 8:30 a.m.

If inclement weather develops, Lewis reveals that the prayer session will instead be conducted at the Romulus City Council Chambers.

The nation's birthday celebration will be climaxed that evening by a fireworks program at dusk.

Driver sleeps, truck tips over

A Kentucky truck driver fell asleep at the wheel of his semi-tractor trailer truck last Thursday while driving on Interstate-94 and the vehicle tipped over throwing fresh vegetables all over the highway.

Romulus police said Carl Thomas Pridemore, 47, of Florence, Ky., reportedly was traveling east on I-94 near Inkster Road about 1:50 a.m., when he fell asleep.

Police said that although the truck flipped on its side as it left the highway, Pridemore was not injured. Police Officer Robert Gattley issued him a summons for failing to maintain control of his vehicle.

Police said the strewn vegetables tied up highway traffic for more than three hours that morning.

Women's softball tourney slated

The first annual Women's Softball Tournament sponsored by the Romulus Recreation Department will be conducted July 1 at Elmer Johnson Park.

The double-elimination tournament is slated to take place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will be limited to eight teams.

Teams need to pay a $100 registration fee by June 26 or until the full number of teams is signed on. All participants must be 18 years or older by July 4, 1994. Further information can be obtained by calling 942-6852.

A Men's Tournament also will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the same park.

RECAP given special award

Members of Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP) citizens group were honored last Saturday by the Southeast Michigan Coalition on Occupational Safety and Health group.

RECAP members Verlie Wilhide, R.P. Lilly and Debbie Romak were presented with the special environmental award at the annual SEM-COSH dinner and awards program.

This is the second award RECAP has earned in its fight against a planned commercial environmental well in Romulus.

Drug prevention effort successful

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A major effort to establish greater self esteem and conflict resolution skills was climaxed last week for the "Circle of Friends" from Merriman Elementary School with a visit to Romulus City Hall.

The "Friends" group includes 48 second-, third- and fourth-graders who met from 2:45 to 5:30 p.m. once a week to gain help with school homework and to join in art, music and game projects under the direction of Barbara Blum and Megan Barber.

The program that has worked successfully in the Taylor Schools for three years, was initiated at the Merriman School by Principal Andrea Williams.

Each weekly session contained three or four components, Blum said, including homework time, art, recreation and either a guest speaker or special project.

"The adults who work with the program model positive discipline and practice conflict resolution skills with the children on an on-going basis," Blum said.

She further explained the children are given a lot of needed attention and nurturing, as well as respectful attitudes and behaviors from the volunteer high school teen and adult helpers.

On June 5, the young students visited Romulus City Hall, meeting first with Mayor Beverly McAnally and two staff members, Hafeeza Khalifa and Nina Wood.

McAnally discussed positive peer pressure with the students and urged them to be voices of reasons in their neighborhoods.

She also asked the students to convince their peers not to damage or destroy community property—such as local park equipment.

Wood, a co-op student from Romulus High School, read materials on saying no to drug offers and a city assessor representative displayed each child's home listed on the city's computer.

The youths were also given a personal "I love Romulus" key chain and autograph from McAnally.

The program is sponsored by the Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force. Blum is from the Romulus Help Center/CCODA Prevention of Hegira Programs.

Williams was particularly proud of the impact the program had on her students' self esteem and conflict resolution skills.

"I witnessed them using the strategies at school they were exposed to during the program and their parents said they saw similar efforts at home," Williams said.

"Another exciting part of the program," she said, "was that the eight or nine high school students who helped out provided mighty peer help for the younger students, as well as learning a great deal about society themselves."

Williams is hopeful that funding can be obtained to continue the "Circle of Friends" program this fall.

The audit by the Michigan Supreme Court's financial investigators probed the years of 1989 to 1993.

Schuette was replaced for a little over a year by Michael Ramsey, who resigned earlier this year. During Ramsey's work period, over 100 financial system changes were implemented.

Since Ramsey's departure, the three judges at the Romulus based court have divided the administrator's job into three separate responsibility areas. Three veteran women court employees are filling those posts.

Sprinkle still awaits heart

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Romulus heart patient Charles (Chuck) Sprinkle is back on his feet.

Sprinkle, who spent more than 70 days immobile and on a balloon heart pump at Beaumont Hospital, was given a new artificial heart device on May 24 at Pittsburgh University Medical Center in Pittsburgh.

He still is anxiously awaiting the donation of a human heart.

"They are teaching me how to walk all over again," Sprinkle said from his hospital room. "After 80 days it feels great to be on my feet again. I've got two or three physical therapy specialists working with me."

Sprinkle's wife, Pat, has been commuting back and forth from Romulus to Pittsburgh the last few weeks, until she finishes her job as school bus driver for the year on Friday.

In the meantime, Sprinkle's emotions are boosted by family visits from his sister, Helen, and brother-in-law, Don Van Riper from Tennessee, and others.

"Just getting up each day out of bed has been a major morale booster for Chuck," Pat relates.

Sprinkle said his doctors are trying to get him to walk at least 1,000 feet every day in an effort to keep his other organs and muscles in good shape.

He tries to sidestep issues such as quick organ donations to such media stars as former baseball great Mickey Mantle.

"Hearts are the hardest organ to obtain," Sprinkle observes. "But I have vowed if I get a new heart and survive this physical crisis, I plan to work hard educating the public about the need for organ donations."

Sprinkle, a former General Motors worker, has been out of work for more than 15 years because of his heart condition.

He has been "Number 1" of the Michigan heart transplant list for a long time.

School board recall threats widen

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Angry Romulus School District parents vowed to widen their potential recall effort to include School Board President Sandra Langley, if the board does not rescind its all day-alternate day kindergarten plan for September.

One of the loudest opponents of the alternate day kindergarten plan is former Westwood School District trustee Robert W. McLachlan.

He warned the Romulus School trustees on Tuesday night that the recall effort is "not the road we wish to travel, but you must know that we will not allow our children to be subjected to programs that we consider harmful."

McLachlan had said several weeks ago that a recall effort against the five school board members, who voted for the alternate day kindergarten program, was being considered.

At that time he excluded Langley and incumbent Howard Kesner, who voted in opposition to the kindergarten plan.

He claimed that he would appear at Tuesday's meeting and try one last time to have the board rescind the action, but that failed. After the meeting McLachlan said he would favor adding Langley to the recall effort because he felt as board president she should have taken stronger action in hearing what the public was saying on the issue, prior to the vote.

When contacted Wednesday morning, Langley revealed she allowed McLachlan and others to speak on their concerns on the kindergarten issue, but when others tried to voice alternative opinions they were shouted at by McLachlan and others in his group.

"I feel we extended every effort to allow the public to voice their views Tuesday night," Langley said, "but when it got very nasty, loud and abusive I had to close the discussion period of the meeting. It was a hard decision to make, but if it happens again I will take the same action."

Langley said issues need to be discussed rationally, not in anger if any positive actions are to be taken.

After McLachlan and other kindergarten action opponents left, she said, many positive issues were discussed concerning how Romulus students are very active in conflict resolution efforts and the high school domestic violence symposium activists have won both state and national acclaim.

We feel we have kept open communications with the public, Langley said, but admitted there is room for improvement.

The only board member not to be listed in the latest recall effort was Kesner, who was just re-elected on Monday in an uncontested election that attracted 331 voters. Of that total 213 voted by absentee ballot.

The next step, McLachlan said, is to find a lawyer sympathetic to the group's cause that can help them get the issue on an upcoming ballot.

Incumbent Romulus School Board candidate Howard Kesner, who was running unopposed Monday, easily won reelection by gaining 298 of the 320 votes cast.

A spokeswoman for the Romulus City Clerk's office said the other 22 votes were for various write-in candidates.

This marked Kesner's third win for a four-year term.

Businesses aid city fireworks

Seventy two businesses contributed a total of $2,770 toward the city's planned July 4 fireworks display, Brian Hitsky, director of Parks and Recreation, revealed recently.

While there were mostly gifts of $35 each per industrial and business firm, there were two gifts of more than $100. They were from Nelson Paper Recycling Inc. ($150) and American Diesel Inc. of $105.

Resolution adopted to change Recorder's Court

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKE
MCN Staff Writer

If an effort to halt the mounting concerns relating to residents inability to participate in the elections for Detroit Recorder's Court judges, the Westland City Council unanimously passed a resolution supporting the move to change legislation.

Currently, under state law, judges of Recorder's Court have jurisdiction over residents of all of Wayne County, including those who live outside of the city of Detroit. However, non-Detroit residents do not have the right to vote for Recorder's Court judges, who are elected exclusively by residents of Detroit.

The move by city officials, if adopted by the state legislature, would provide that in the future Recorder's Court judges would be elected countywide.

The proposed Michigan legislation would either require Recorder's Court judges to be elected in countywide elections or replace existing Recorder's Court judges, at the expiration of their terms, with Circuit Court judges who are to be elected in countywide elections.

"Historically district court judges, for example our 18th

Historically district court judges, for example our 18th District Court, implement high bonds and stiffer penalties than Recorder's Court judges who in turn drastically reduce the bond amounts our court issues.

District Court, implement high bonds and stiffer penalties than Recorder's Court judges who in turn drastically reduce the bond amounts our court issues," said Westland City Councilwoman Sandra Cicirelli.

The councilwoman said she feels the change in law would send a clear and important message downtown from the community.

The proposed resolution also states it would be appropriate for the Recorder's Court judges to be responsive to all of the citizens within their jurisdiction.

"It's only right that you be judged by your peers and those you voted for," said City Council President Tom Brown.

Therefore, the council feels it would be fair for Recorder's Court judges with countywide jurisdiction to be elected in countywide elections, he said.

The resolution, submitted to the city council by Westland Police Chief Emery Price, was drafted by City Attorney Angelo Plakas, to support the pending legislation.

Woman honored school volunteer

By KRISTIN HONECKER
MCN Special Writer

The Board of Education and the "I Care" Committee established a Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS) award to congratulate and recognize volunteers who are making a difference in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

On May 22, Lee Ann Young was honored as the 1995 winner by the Board of Education.

Young has been an active volunteer at both Field and Bentley Elementary Schools. She has served as Parent-Teacher Organization (PTO) president at both schools, organized a Bentley ice cream social, established Art Week at both schools and sits on the interviewing committee for teaching candidates.

She also organized a birthday celebration for Bentley, established a Salute to Volunteers and is a Caring Athletes Teaming for Children's Hospital (CATCH) supporter and worker.

"Her willingness to help is only a phone call away," said Bentley Elementary School Principal Larry Miller. "Her strength and independence combined with cooperation make her a powerful contributor."

Board member Barbara Graham presented her with her award. Graham thanked her for all her efforts and for being so unselfish with her time.

To honor her volunteer service, she was presented with a framed resolution passed by the Board of Education, a flag and liberty pin and a dinner certificate.

Canton principal retires

After five years of service to the Plymouth Canton School District, Dr. Tom Mackenzie, principal of Canton High School will be retiring from the Michigan system.

Dr. Mackenzie, who has enjoyed his stay in Canton, will be moving to Glendale, Ariz., where his wife has been living since the fall.

"My wife has bad asthma and this climate has been too harsh for her. I have a daughter who lives with her family in Phoenix and my wife has been staying with her to see if the weather down there is better."

It has been and so Dr. Mackenzie will be joining her shortly, adding that "long-distance relationships are not a lot of fun."

"I have enjoyed staying in Canton. The students and parents are wonderful. I often call them the geniuses of the community. The work ethic is so strong. People who have lived here their entire life don't see it, but when you've been to many places as I have, it is obvious," said Dr. Mackenzie.

The school election results are in, and not surprisingly, voter turnout was dismal. That to me, continues to be the top story when it comes to school elections.

In the Wayne-Westland School District, where voters approved an 18-mill renewal on non-homestead property and a 3-mill increase that will be utilized to combat a deficit, approximately 6,500 voters went to the polls. Considering the magnitude of the issues, that turnout was lousy.

However, Wayne-Westland's turnout was better than most other districts in Western Wayne. For instance, Van Buren (Belleville) Schools had three candidates running for two positions. The race attracted approximately 460 voters who decided to return incumbents Karl Gorham and Martha Toth to office. Certainly returning the incumbents was wise, but common, 460 voters. I can't believe that Van Buren voters are that apathetic.

Despite a particularly heated race that pitted former superintendent of schools Dr. Edmond Beverly and longtime Inkster educator Lorraine Patterson against two incumbents, less than 10 percent of the Inkster School District voters bothered to get off their easy chairs to make their way to the polling booth. By the way, if anybody cares, incumbents Lorenzo Moner and Norma McDaniel edged Patterson and Beverly in one of the closest races the Inkster School District has seen.

Canton's turnout was over 8,200, again not very good for a ballot that included 10 candidates running for two positions and two proposals. Candidates Michael Maloney and Carrie Blamer rose from the pack to win the four-year terms.

Surprisingly, a 2.3 mill increase for enhancement programs went down to defeat by a 4,145 to 3,948 margin in Plymouth-Canton. This might have occurred because many voters expressed confusion over just what the enhancement millage was going to be used for. That confusion apparently translated into "no" votes.

Probably the biggest winner statewide, was the Wayne-Westland School District. Beset by all kinds of financial problems, the district did not decide to ask for the additional millage proposal until four weeks before the election. Of course, like all decisions this Board makes, this decision was met with boos and hisses from many people. Even supporters were against the additional millage because the campaign window had been greatly reduced.

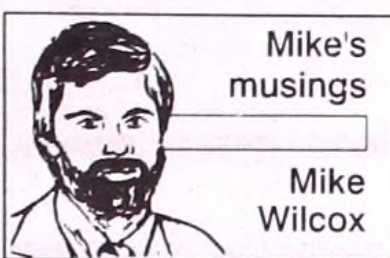

If it were appropriate to bet on such items, I certainly would have tossed a lot of money on the "nay" votes triumphing on this item. I, thankfully, was wrong. Wayne-Westland voters approved the additional 3 mills which should give their new superintendent a big building block to begin a new, prosperous era for this school system.

And the loser tag goes to all those people that gripe about our schools yet couldn't take the time to vote last Monday. The top story of this election is that most people could care less about their school system. That story, I'm ashamed to say, is one of the major reasons our system of education is in crisis.

School labor-management relations hinder progress

At last, the days are getting warmer and longer; another school year is coming to a close. For parents of public school students, this time of year prompts a vague uneasiness. This is the season teacher contract talks get underway.

As both an administrator and a parent of three public school students, I, too, am uneasy. Are my kids going to be getting back into the classroom on time this year? Or will labor disputes cause a delay in the opening of schools, even as the World Series begins? If, unlike last year, a vicious labor dispute between the players and management doesn't disrupt the sea-

Police officers work honored

To the editor:

Every week I read your column, most of the time the letters that are printed are complaint letters or someone condemning someone else. I don't want to complain or condemn, actually I want to thank the persons whom a lot of the complaints are targeted at - our police officers.

With the unfortunate death of (Detroit Police) Officer Philpot, a lot of us have been brought back to the reality of what a police officer entails every day in their job. Police officers are sent out on runs not knowing what is in store for them, it could be a routine traffic stop or it could be a lot more. If there's a chase will they be condemned for putting lives in danger or if the chase is called off will they be condemned for not getting the bad guy. There are life and death judgment calls that they have to make every day and be responsible for the rest of their lives. Most of us can leave our jobs at work, but for a police officer there's a part of them that is always on duty. It may be watching for something or something suspicious, or it might be the haunting memory of someone they weren't able to save.

As I sat and watched Officer Philpot's funeral procession go by all I could think of was his family. His seven month old daughter given a flag in remembrance of her father, will she get to hear the good things that police officers do, or will she only hear the things that make the news - the bad things a few officers are responsible for. In our society the bad news is what sells the newspapers and makes the ratings on television. Then I think of his wife, she probably sent him off to work with a goodbye kiss, a prayer for God to bring him home safe and confidence in her heart that he was a good officer so he would be all right.

I do the same every day. My husband is a police officer. I am thankful for each day that he and his fellow officer's come home safe. They aren't just fellow employees, they're the only thing they have to depend on when they're out on a run - each other. I give each officer a lot of credit, you really have to love your job to put your life in danger to protect each of ours. Unfortunately you sometimes have a thankless job, but know that there are those of us who are thankful for what you do and proud of who you are. Thank you!!

Graduates get advice

To the editor:

It's graduation time. And many new graduates will be entering the labor force. What advice would I give a new graduate facing today's tough economy?

First and foremost - seek employment in the public sector. Here's why:

There are really two economies - of nearly equal size - in the U.S. today - the public sector economy and the private sector economy.

The public sector is a "command" economy - it gets its money through taxation. If it wants more money - it simply "commands" it by raising taxes.

On the other hand, the private sector economy is a "market economy" - it is competitive and "cost driven." Most of the "high value added" jobs in the private sector will eventually move "off shore" as corporations seek cheap labor, lower taxes and less government regulation.

Unfortunately, the combination of cheap labor doing high value added work is too lucrative for big corporations to ignore. And even if they did ignore it - their competitors would not.

The U.S. private sector will, in my opinion, eventually be reduced to primarily service sector jobs. The service sector, by definition, can not be moved off shore.

Persons with enhanced skills in the service sector will still be able to have rewarding careers in the 21st century.

Are you looking for total and absolute "Worker Nirvana"? Then work in the public sector. Government jobs are nearly all unionized, and provide some kind of essential monopoly service to the public. Wages are high and benefits generous. And public sector pension funds own a shockingly large percentage of the common stock in our large publicly traded companies. Wealth is truly concentrating in the public sector as never before.

Furthermore, I believe that wealth will continue to concentrate in the public sector's "command" economy. Always remember - paying taxes is not like "buying a Ford." With taxes - you pay them, or else the bailiff is at your door. Ford Motor Co. can not send the bailiff after me if I buy a General Motors car.

Working for the government then is truly the best of

Sound-Off 729-4006

Dogs, pool, schools receive comment

Callers to the Sound-Off 729-4006 line expressed their opinions on a variety of subjects this week.

Individuals who wish to comment on any subject of general interest may call the Sound-Off line between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. daily or at any time on the weekend.

The following calls were received:

I am calling to complain about the man's comments in Sound-Off who takes care of the flowers in Goudy Park. I am a pet owner. I do not take my dog to the park, but if I did, I would put in on a leash, and I think that people should be allowed to walk their dogs in the park when they want to. If a dog has to go, it has to go. People should take care of their pet's accidents, but I think that he has a bad attitude about the whole thing. Maybe, he should put a fence around them.

I suggest that the gentleman who is complaining about his roses in the park, plant them in his own back yard rather than having us walk our dogs in ours. Maybe we don't want to see them. The park is a place for us to walk our dogs, and take our children to. Go home with your flowers, pal.

I am calling about the pool in Wayne. It is obvious that the council has overstepped its bounds in its spending. Several citizens told them that the pool they wanted would cost them a lot more. They want $6 to $7 million to build this pool. We don't need a pool that bad. I think we need to start over and get an honest estimate of what this pool will cost.

I live in Westland and I would just like to say that the sooner the state takes over the schools, the better off we will be. If they got 80 or 90 mills, they still would not be able to do it.

I was wondering why the city of Wayne has to be part of the Wayne-Westland School District? It being the third largest school district in Michigan, and I wonder why we are third, when there are cities like Saginaw and Flint. Maybe, we should organize and have our own school district, small enough to control. We are not even represented on the school board. Why do we have to be a part of this?

I see where Mayor Thomas fired the director of the recreation department, Chuck Skang, and then turned around and rehired him. He should fire himself for letting all of these weeds grow up around here and on Cherry Hill. I wonder what he thinks about that?

Saturday morning at 6 a.m., two small deer were on the side of Wayne Road. They were exciting to see after living all these years in the city of Wayne.

I am calling to complain about Romulus being trashed once again. I just found out

Open primary proposed

To the editor:

An open presidential primary would be held in Michigan in March 1996 under a measure moving through the Michigan Legislature. All other primary elections in the state are open except the presidential primary.

House Bill 4435 is being met with strong opposition from the Democratic Party hierarchy at the state and federal level despite support from rank-and-file Democrats. In the House, the legislation was approved by an overwhelming vote of 100-4.

Voters have made it abundantly clear, both by voice and deed, that the closed presidential primary forced on us by the Democrats in the 1980s is unacceptable. In 1972, the last time Michigan held an open presidential primary, 47 percent of registered voters cast ballots. In the closed primary of 1992, voter participation dropped to a pitiful 18 percent. Voters have a right to protect their privacy in the voting booth without giving up their right to participate in the election process.

The privacy of the voting booth has stood the test of time. It is a process we can trust. Without privacy, participation in the democratic process will continue to decline and cynicism and distrust of government will continue to build.

Local election officials took the brunt of voter dissatisfaction and anger over the requirement to declare party preference in 1992. And poll workers, who didn't make the decision to close the primary election, watched in frustration as voters walked away from the polls in huge numbers, refusing to cast a ballot because they were required to register their party preference.

The people of Michigan are entitled to openness of, accessibility to, and full participation in the electoral process. Voter participation should be a higher priority than party leaders' fear of crossover voters. Closing the presidential primary excludes voters from a fundamental American right.

Protecting the sanctity of the voting booth and ensuring citizens a voice in selection of candidates for national office are the issues driving this legislation. For these reasons, Republicans have strongly supported the bill. By opening up the primary, the responsibility for corrupting the process falls squarely on those Democrat leaders who defy public opinion and attempt to control the electorate.

Court starts 'ticking bomb'

To the editor:

Michigan's Supreme Court started a time bomb ticking which threatens funding for our schools and the new public education finance system. The court recently ruled in the Musselman case that health insurance premiums for future school retirees must be prepaid.

The effects of this decision are profound for Michigan schools: the cost of correcting past actions could reach $1 billion for 1995-96 or about $700 for each public school student in the state. The annual cost for pre-funding health insurance benefits could be several hundred million dollars a year over the next decade.

Proposal A changed Michigan's school finance system to require schools to pay the cost of school employees' retirement. Prior to that, the state had controlled and paid for the system. The state still controls the system. Retirement benefits are set by the legislature and a state appointed board oversees the system, but schools now pay all retirement costs out of their basic foundation grant. It seems patently unfair to hold individual school districts responsible for something out of their control. Did the Supreme Court take this change into consideration in formulating its decision?

If the Supreme Court's decision is correct, the actions of state decision makers may have been pragmatic and well intentioned but legally erroneous. Funds which had been set aside for paying insurance benefits of future retirees were instead used by the state to help pay the present expenses of Michigan's K-12 education system. This meant that while other budgets were being cut in the early 1990s, school funding was not reduced. However, if the Supreme Court holds to its decision, it is possible that your local school district will now be held financially liable for past actions of the state.

The bottom line is there is a fixed amount of money to pay for all public goods and services. Prepaying health insurance costs for future retirees of public schools will reduce dollars available for current general education purposes. Back payment of the magnitude involved in this case will blow up the system and cause widespread devastation of K-12 educational programs.

Schools

Even though the national dialogue about education continues to move forward, when it comes to labor-management relations in school districts throughout the state, issues are considered in virtually the same way they were 20 or 30 years ago. The adversaries of late summer act the same way they've always acted. Behind closed doors, they spar across the negotiation table; and before camera lights, they quarrel across picket lines.

Throughout our nation in recent years, auto makers and textile workers, farm workers and health-care workers have come to recognize a stark reality: management and labor must begin to foster teamwork and cooperation to survive, prosper and reach common goals. The results have been innovative collective-bargaining agreements.

Of course, our schools don't manufacture tangible products for the free market. They're responsible for something far more important and sustaining: imparting the knowledge and skills young people need to take their place as educated citizens in a democracy and as educated workers in the economy of tomorrow.

In education, labor and management must forge partnerships based on mutual respect and shared goals. Both boards and school employees must abandon dispute-focused ways of dealing with one another. "Putting the customer first" and being "competitive in a global market" are phrases we're used to hearing when it comes to economic issues, but these concepts apply in our nation's classrooms as well. Divisive relationships only hinder progress, create long-lasting animosity and begot missed opportunities.

The education climate is very volatile. Frustrated parents throughout the state realize that they can "vote with their feet" by enrolling children in private or charter schools or even joining the ranks of the home-schooling movement.

Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency (RESA) is taking a leadership role in changing education's traditional labor-management paradigm. Through workshop and programs, funded by a grant from the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and through partnerships with other private and public sector organizations with the Southeastern Michigan Labor-Management Committee, RESA is encouraging district and union negotiators to bridge the gap that separate them.

These new management-labor partnerships, just as in other sectors, are ensuring that the competitive edge in the public school education remains sharp. School districts that remain mired in conflict need only be reminded of the days when the Bell System was the only phone company in town. School districts no longer have the non-private education monopoly.

The world will only get smaller as our children grow older.

Editor's note: Michael Flanagan is superintendent of the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency.

that they are changing our trash pickup from Monday to Friday. EDS promised not to change our day when the city signed the contract. I would appreciate it if your paper could investigate this.

I am calling about the swimming pool in the city of Wayne. It has gone from $4.9 million to the "sky is the limit." This council fails to tell us that the prevailing wage effects this. If they included bids from union as well as non-union contractors this would not be the case. The council needs to be more up front with the people so that they know their decisions will be honored, not manipulated.

Individuals who have opinions on the outcomes of the school district elections are invited to call the Sound-Off line or write a letter to the editor.

Four local women comedians had an audience of more than 150 laughing for a good cause at the first annual Laughs for Life benefit presented by the Oakwood Hospital Annapolis Center Foundations.

The event was slated to raise money for the funding of a healthier future for women, through the comprehensive and coordinated women's health program throughout the Oakwood Healthcare System. The goal of the program is to improve the quality of life of the women in the surrounding communities.

The evening included dinner and entertainment provided by the Motor City Women of Comedy. The program was the brain-child of comedians Alyce Faye and Mary Miller, two local performers

"We value the important contributions women have to the decisions in health care," said Carla O'Malley, Senior Vice President, of Acute Care for Oakwood Hospital. "We care for women from the cradle to the grave with a full spectrum of services including acute care, physicians visits, early detection screening, prevention, and rehabilitation."

Two other comedians that kept the laughs rolling included Jill Washburn and Gilda Hauser. The women entertained the event participants on the subjects of dating, men, children, exercise and pets. Washburn can be seen on television in the mornings giving traffic updates as well as touring across the country incorporating her comedy into numerous charity and corporate functions. Hauser, a semi-finalist in the prestigious 1995 Vail International Comedy Competition, has been performing for the past six years before giving up a career as a stockbroker.

Event organizers Helen Tomlin, Margaret Harlow and Karen Battle were pleased with the outcome of the event and the money raised to benefit the health care needs of women. Organizers are planning to make the benefit an annual event in hopes of heightening the awareness of the special health care needs of women, that make up more than 60 percent of the 1.2 million people served through the Oakwood Healthcare System.

Symphony seeks donations

A goal of $25,000 in individual donations has been set by the Plymouth Symphony as it continues its Annual Sustaining Fund Drive through June.

Area corporations have previously been contacted through the Corporate Campaign.

"This is a wonderful opportunity to support the Plymouth Symphony so they may continue to provide the community with quality music," said Kristin Schonhoff, chairperson for the campaign.

The funds generated from this campaign will be used towards operational expenses during the Symphony's 50th Anniversary Season. Recent cuts in federal funding for the arts have resulted in increased efforts on the part of all arts organizations to seek private sources for revenue. "Ticket sales only cover small portions of our expenses, therefore, we're having to rely more on private funds to stay afloat," Schonhoff said.

Schonhoff has played violin in the Symphony for the last 12 years, and is employed at St. Mary's Hospital in Administration.

Ford Ranger delivers hefty payload plus special features

By JUSTIN WILCOX
MCN Automotive Writer

What has four tires, a 4.0 liter V-6 engine, can throw mud 20 feet in the air and make you feel like you are driving one of those gigantic monster trucks? Give up?

It's the redesigned for '95 Ford Ranger STX 4X4 edition. For 1995, Ford Ranger delivers a hefty payload of safety and appearance improvements designed to please customers and help the compact pickup truck maintain the market leadership it has held for eight years.

All Ranger models have a new grille plus a new instrument panel and seat trim for 1995.

A driver's side air bag is standard. Another major safety addition is a new front-end crush-energy management system designed to absorb the energy of an impact. Its key components are a structural beam running from A-pillar to A-pillar and a one-piece magnesium steering wheel.

Side impact protection is enhanced by side door guard beams. Front wheel disc brakes with an anti-lock braking system (ABS) are standard on Ranger Models equipped with the optional 4.0 liter V-6 engine and all four wheel drive models. Rear wheel ABS is standard on all Ranger models.

The ranger option list has been expanded for 1995 to include a six-way power drivers seat on SuperCab models, 15-inch aluminum wheels, and a remote entry system coupled with an anti-theft system that flashes the lights and sounds the horn if any tampering is attempted.

Among the many other options available are an air conditioner whose refrigerant is free of CFC's, speed control, tilt steering wheel and an electronic audio system.

There are two negative aspects about the Ranger that are common for this type of vehicle no matter what brand name it carries.

the Ranger's cab is that it is quite a step up to gain access. This made me a bit leery when I first put the truck in drive, I thought that I would tip the thing over on the first turn I approached. To my surprise, the truck handled better than some of the cars that I have tested from other companies.

The ride is harsh, but not unbearable, its what you should expect of a vehicle in

The Ranger should not be classified as an off-road vehicle, rather it should be considered a fun-mobile.

First, with a price of $22,075, the Ranger STX 4X4 is certainly not cheap. For the price you receive an automatic transmission, a limited slip axle, power windows and locks, an anti-theft system with keyless entry, sliding rear window, anti-lock brakes and a CD changer that can hold six CDs.

The second down side is that the Ranger is a thirsty little bugger considering that its dimensions in length is not much different than an econobox sedan.

The first thing you will notice when you climb up into this category. The Ranger should not be classified as an off-road vehicle, rather it should be considered a fun-mobile. Fun is exactly what you get, you can go skiing, mountain biking, motorcycling, kayaking or whatever your favorite sport is with the confidence that you can get there no matter what the terrain is. You can do it in complete comfort.

Way to go Ford, just work on getting the sticker price down so I, and everyone else can own and enjoy this vehicle.

Volunteers clean up Rouge at annual event

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKIE
MCN Staff Writer

The 10th annual cleanup of the Rouge River, organized by Friends of the Rouge, celebrated a decade of community dedication to the environment.

The one-day event attracted more than 500 people to the three sites throughout the city of Westland, the largest reported turn-out in the county. "The local communities, companies, and organizations that sponsor cleanup sites, and the thousands of people who have volunteered, make it clear they want to see the Rouge returned to the valuable natural asset it once was," said Hurley Coleman, president of Friends of the Rouge and Director of the Wayne County Parks System.

Locally student and resident volunteers pitched in their hands and a few hours of work to clean up area locations, Holliday Nature Preserve, and sites at Ann Arbor Road and Newburgh and Hines Drive at Ann Arbor Trail, the Tonquish and Willow Creeks (tributaries of the Middle Rouge River). unteers were distributed protective gloves, garbage bags and instructions on removing fallen trees and debris from the river locations.

The non-profit community organizations, founded in 1986, launched the first Rouge Rescue that year at 13 locals with more than 1,500 volunteers.

According to Civitan President Barbara Polich, the day's work included planting trees, storm drain cleanup, debris removal and the collection of returnable bottles and can that are redeemed to support the Friends of the Rouge Education Project.

"We are very pleased with the more than 200 volunteers that have come out to help cleanup as well as the volunteer services of the Holliday Nature Preserve, Westland Youth Assistance, Civitans and Friends of the Rouge," said Polich.

Rouge supporters view the cleanup as a significant contribution to the quality of life not only the Metro metropolitan area but throughout the state. "This annual cleanup is a continuing example of the dedication local communities have to the preservation of the states rivers and the environment," said volunteer David Sharp.

Juniors to attend 58th annual American Legion

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Three Romulus High School juniors will be leaving for Michigan State University on June 18 for the 58th annual American Legion Boys State program.

The students are Scott Allen Smith, son of Conley and Paula Smith; Brian Joseph Steffani, son of Sean and Sandy Steffani and Brian R. Tomchick, son of Mark and Lind Tomchick.

All three will be giving reports on their Boys' State adventures next year as seniors. Each youth is sponsored by one of the city's service clubs: Smith/the Rotary Club, Stefani/the Progressive Club and Tomchick/the Kiwanis Club.

The Boys State program duplicates the very process by which the governments in Michigan and Washington D.C. operates. Each young man will learn from first-hand experiences how to work within a political party, question procedures and issue and work for the common good.

High School Counselor John Domas said, "The ultimate learning experience derived from this program is that each boy leaves Boys State with a thorough working knowledge of how our American system of government can affect change."

He added, "There is no need for any of today's youth to feel alienated from our society as there is a workable political process to involve them in the continuing success of America."

Domas offered thanks to the following for assisting in the program: Mae Jackson and William Knight, school counselors; Gerald Nault and Michael Prybyla, service club representatives; Thomas Dolan, Mike Teasdale and Melvin Kimbrough, principals; Dennis Stoh, Ann Scott, Mike Kernohan and Sue Vogel-Anderson, teachers; Kathy Abo, class advisor; and Judy Nutt, guidance office secretary.

Local students selected for Auxiliary Girls program

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A trio of Romulus High School juniors will join the 55th Annual American Legion Auxiliary Girls State Program this Saturday at the campus of Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

The girls include Kim Bolus, daughter of Thomas and Phyllis Bolus; Angelo Marie Terry, daughter of Dave and Diane Terry, and Colleen L. Coleman, daughter of Jack and Pat Coleman.

The three have received scholarships valued at $225 each from local service clubs: Bolus/Rotary Club; Terry/Progressive Club and Coleman/Kiwanis Club.

Since 546 girls will be attending the Girls State program, Romulus High School Counselor John Domas said, "Since no one person can

Since no one person can serve in all the offices of government, it is expected that a great deal will be learned by observation of the activities of others.

- John Domas

serve in all the offices of government, it is expected that a great deal will be learned by observation of the activities of others."

Upon their arrival at Girls State each student will be assigned to a mythical political party, a county and a city. There will be seven counties and three cities involved.

The citizens then will nominate and elect various city, county and state officials. There also will be selected members of the Press Association, lobbyist and other interest groups.

"It is hoped that the citizens attending the sessions will leave Girls State with a mature appreciation of some of the basic strengths and weaknesses of the American system of government," Domas said.

Two Michigan girls will ultimately be selected to attend the Girls National to be held later in Washington D.C.

Volunteer honored

By KRISTIN HONECKER
MCN Special Writer

On June 5, Adrienne Bodnar was honored as VIPS award winner by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Adrienne Bodnar has been an active volunteer at both Bird and Isbister Elementary Schools. Some of her roles include room mother, library aide and phone fan-out person.

She has been chairperson of the Junior Great Books program since it began at Bird and Isbister elementary schools. The Bird and Isbister Junior Great Books program is the only one in Western Wayne County, but Bodnar continues to work to bring the program to other Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"At Isbister she has been involved in Parent Teacher Group functions, has helped out in the classroom and has given valuable insight into ways to make our new families feel welcome. It seems as though she has been with us for years because she fits in so well with our activities," said Lee Harrison, principal at Isbister Elementary School.

To honor her volunteer service, Board Member Mark Horvath presented her with a framed resolution passed by the Board of Education, a flag of learning and liberty pin and a dinner gift certificate.

Salem shows there is life after regional playoffs

Rocks crush Ann Arbor Huron, Jackson to advance to quarterfinal

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Sports Editor

The jolt of losing a heart-breaking 2-1 championship game a couple of weeks ago apparently jump-started Plymouth-Salem's baseball battery. Coach Dale Rumberger's Rocks are on a roll as they crushed their last four teams to win a Class A regional baseball championship. Their final two victories on Saturday over Jackson and Ann Arbor Huron were their ticket to the state quarterfinals.

Barring inclement weather, Salem was scheduled to meet Detroit Catholic Central Tuesday night in Milan to decide which team will continue on their dream season.

The winner of the Salem-Detroit Catholic Central game will qualify to play in the state semifinals which will be staged Friday night at Bailey Park in Battle Creek.

C.O. Brown Stadium and Nichols Field are the sites for the June 16 semis, with Brown Stadium picked as the site of the state finals. The championship will be decided on June 17.

Rumberger, who served as an assistant coach for the past eight years to John Gravin, is rounding out his first year as head coach. The team success has been incredible, he admits. The Rocks have won 24 of their 31 games this season.

After dropping a 2-1 decision in extra innings to Farmington Harrison that cost the Rocks the Western Lakes Conference overall championship, Salem has rebounded and massacred their regional rivals. They have outscored their opponents 22-1 in the regional playoffs.

Rumberger says that he is not only pleased with the hitting, but the pitching and defense has been superb. The team has peaked at the right time, he added.

Behind senior hurler Justin Marcis' three-hitter, the Rocks blanked Ann Arbor Huron, 12-0, in the preliminary game called after five because of the mercy rule. (When a team has scored a 10-run advantage over its opponent, the umpire may terminate the game at the end of five innings.

Marcis, who lost the pitching duel against Harrison, remained pitched another strong game against Huron. He didn't give up a base on balls to the River Rats, while he whiffed five.

Salem scored in all five innings, putting deuces on the board in the first, third and fifth innings and coming back for treys in the second and fourth frames.

Aspiring Romulus sprinter faces her 'ultimate test'

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Sports Editor

In the world of track and field where time and distance are the essence of the game, an athlete may have little, if any, time to concentrate.

Ask former Romulus High track star and present University of Michigan sprinter Tearza Johnson what she thinks during a crucial race, and the answer may surprise you.

She doesn't. She runs. That's her answer.

And Johnson, who is the 1995 Big Ten Conference indoor 200-meter champion, and who also holds the Big Ten's third-fastest time in the outdoor event this season (23.86) is quick to point out that those who do usually pay dearly for their thoughts.

"You don't have time to think, and if you do you will lose the race," added Johnson, one of the finest sprinters to ever compete for Romulus High, according to her former high school coach, Ron Bayes.

"You get off the block and you go. There is no time to think or wonder or anything."

The body just pushes off the block, the knees pumping high and the hands cutting through the air. A few steps into the race, the athlete enters the twilight zone, where the metaphysical begins and reality is somewhere beyond, and all conscious behavior stops for seconds that feel like a lifetime.

You continue to call upon all of your training, all of your strength to reach that predetermined destination, and once you return to reality you swear you'll never do it again.

Oh, but you do. Because you love it.

"If you pause to think who's alongside of you or what's happening, you will suffer. Believe me you will. Your race is against time. Not against individuals. If you think about who is next to you, you're out of it."

The world of reality shuts down with the blast of the starter's gun as the knees and the arms, and the body, working in a motion developed through years of hard work and coaching takes over.

"You don't think. You know what you have to do. And you do it."

It took only one race, when she was in the third grade in her native Georgia, to set the course of Tearza's life, according to her mother, Judy Phillips.

"Tearza had competed in one of those field-day programs which included running events," recalls Mrs. Phillips, "and afterwards she came to me and said she knew what she wanted to do."

"Tearza said she wanted to run, and she asked me to promise her that I would never stop her."

Tearza's mother agreed.

And Tearza has been running ever since. When the family moved to Romulus from Georgia, it was the magic of track that smoothed the transition. Romulus coaches found an unpolished gem in the graceful Johnson, who began a three-year varsity career as a ninth grader.

"She is not only a natural talent," pointed out Bayes, a seasoned track coach with 10 years of experience. "Tearza was one of the hardest workers I have ever coached. She is a born leader. During the three years she was on the team the kids here looked up to her. She was the leader."

Although an injury kept Johnson out of the state finals in her senior year at Romulus, she did make the All-State team

Unmatchable Wayne netters also named to all-league team

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Sports Editor

Unmatchable on their team, two Wayne Memorial seniors have also been recognized for their achievements by the Mega Conference tennis coaches.

The two - James Bohnwagner and David Pfeifer - were recently selected as the top players on their team and have now earned recognition from the coaches in the league who have selected them to the coveted all-conference team.

"Bohnwagner and Pfeifer have been able to lead this team through a very trying season," said veteran Wayne Memorial tennis coach Mike Hairabedian. "Because of pay-to-play, we have not had many participants in the program. Both Bohnwagner and Pfeifer have been outstanding in a season that has been a very tough one for all of us."

Wayne only won one of its 14 matches during the recently completed campaign, and finished in the cellar of their division.

A Pay-to-participate policy was put in place at the beginning of the current school year by the Wayne-Westland Board of Education for all student-athletes who wished to play varsity sports.

If a millage proposal which was on the annual school election ballot Monday was not approved by the voters in the school district the program will also be reinstated for the coming school year.

Bohnwagner is a two-year veteran of varsity tennis competition. At the end of the 1994 season, he started his rise in singles and took third place in the Mega Conference league championships.

During the 1995 campaign, Bohnwagner lost only to the top players at the No. 2 singles slot.

In addition to his tennis, he also carried an enviable 3.866 grade point average.

Pfeifer also is a scholar-athlete. He has competed in tennis competition for the past three years and the last two he has held top No. 1 singles position. David has served as the captain of the Zebros' team and is a very dedicated player and student of the sport, according to Hairabedian.

"David has always supported his fellow teammates," Hairabedian noted. "Often times he would also give them valuable tips on playing strategies."

State champs

There is a good reason why there are smiles on the faces of Tamika Craig (from left), Lorri Alverson, Juanita McGrew and Andrea McGrew. The four young athletes struck gold at the Class B state track & field championships by winning the 1,600-meter relay in record-setting time. They posted a 4:07 in their victory. There is also a big smile on Robichaud coach Francis McCauley's face these days - his lineup will return intact next year to defend its state crown.

Local drivers set pace at Milan track

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Sports Editor

Local drivers set a torrid pace over the weekend at the Milan International Dragway. Turning the top speed in the Super Pro race was Canton Township driver Mickey Adams who pushed his vehicle to speeds of 121.11 to cross the finish line just ahead of his brother, Shorty Adams, who was runnerup.

Belleville driver Jim King won the Sportsman bracket race with an average speed of 113.98 miles per hour, beating Dan Engel, who was in a 1972 Mustang to the wire.

In other races, Belleville's Rich Corl and Frank Mathe also turned in with victories.

Milan International Speedway will host the Michigan Top Fuel Invitational on July 1-2 and also gears up for a Night of Fire program scheduled for later in the season.

Drag-racing fans can reach the raceway by taking U.S. 23 to exit 25 (Plank Road). For further information, telephone 439-7368.

All-Area

MCN sports writer Tom Mooradian and staff will be compiling stats and figures on individual players. The lineup will be finalized over the weekend hopefully so that the team will make its appearance for next week edition.

Also, the MCN's staff will again be selecting a Coach of the Year for the sport.

As in the past, there is a perimeter from where these players may be selected. The nominees must have attended one of the following high schools during the 1995 season: Wayne Memorial, Westland John Glenn, Belleville, Romulus, Robichaud, Inkster, Plymouth-Salem or Plymouth-Canton.

That telephone number again is 729-4000, and the lines will be open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Salem reaches state quarterfinals

hit Rock assault as he hammered a two-run homer in the fifth inning, chasing home Sam LaGrow before he checked in with the run that ended the game. Lear had a perfect two-for-two for the game.

The Rocks also got three hits, including a double and a pair of singles from Dave Quaine who drilled a bases-loaded double that scored Lear and Ahamnde Grimes in the first inning.

In the nightcap, Rumberger sent Ryan Andrzejewski to the mound and the right-handed junior responded by scattering seven Jackson hits in a 10-1 shellacking that clinched the regional championship.

Andrzejewski lost his bid for a shutout in the bottom of the second when Jackson scored its only run. The Salem junior chalked up six strikeouts while he also walked two.

Salem erupted for four runs in the first inning as Kazuki Kurisu sparked the rally when he got aboard on an error. Then, Bill Styles sacrificed him to second and Lear walked, putting runners on first and second.

Grimes then came through with a two-run single and, after Quaine fanned, Jeff Mackiewicz walked and that brought sophomore Ryan Rumberger, the coach's son, to the plate.

Rumberger ripped a RBI single that went right up-the-middle. Mike Brannan kept the Rocks' machine going as he also laced a run-producing single, lifting Salem to a quick 4-0 lead. Jackson found itself in a hole that they never were able to dig out of.

In the third, Salem sealed Jackson's fate with five big runs. Mackiewicz led off with a single and the next batter up, Rumberger, hammered a fast pitch over the leftfielder's head for a double. Brannan's sacrifice fly scored Rumberger and Sam LaGrow got aboard on a fielder's choice.

Kurisu sounded the knell for Jackson as he crunched one over the left field fence for a three-run homer.

Salem was not finished with Jackson, yet. Billy Styles singled and he scored when Lear

Styles played an outstanding game on defense as the senior short stop was credited with eight assists.

Rumberger said that Andrzejewski got stronger as the game progressed. Although the Rock hurler's fastball was on target, his curveball began to find its mark midway in the game, enabling Andrzejewski to keep Jackson batters unbalanced most of the afternoon, according to Rumberger.

For the record, Plymouth-Salem has won a Class A state baseball title. The Rocks did the impossible in 1991, but if the Rocks manage to win the next three games, it will obviously be an incredible feat.

Sprinter

as a junior after finishing among the top three in the 100 and 200-meter events.

Highly recruited by college coaches, Johnson decided to attend the University of Michigan "because of the university's academic standards and because she could identify with the coaches."

Wolverine coach James Henry believes that there is a competitiveness in Tearza Johnson that could make her a "phenomenal talent".

And that's what she will have to become - phenomenal - if she has any plans in the future to become a member of U.S. Olympic Track & Field Team, according to the U of M coach.

"This is a young athlete who is very aggressive and scrappy," says Henry. "This is an athlete who cut 1 1/2 seconds off her time in the 200 and is also a student who has a 3.3 GPA. We're talking about a very intelligent person who is a very hard worker."

"That kind of combination spells success in any endeavor and I believe she has a good chance of making the (Olympic) team if she puts her heart to the challenge."

But Henry reiterated - "you have to be a phenomenal athlete to compete in the Olympics. That's the bottom line. No one makes it to the Olympics who is mediocre."

Incidentally, the 1996 Olympics will be staged in Atlanta, Georgia. It would be a fitting homecoming for the local sprinter.

Johnson showed she has what it takes to be a winner. She captured the Big 10 Conference indoor title in the 200-meters with a 24.21, a victory that established her as one of the finest sprinters in the country. She ran seventh in the 100 (11.68).

But injuries stopped her in the outdoor version of the conference championships.

When Tearza Johnson arrived on the collegiate scene, Henry was the first to admit he didn't "see a blue chip athlete" in the newcomer.

"What she was in my opinion is what I like to say is a blue collar athlete, one who works hard to get where she or he wants to go. That was and is Tearza Johnson."

The 37-year-old Henry also warns that the transition from high school to college athlete is not a natural and easy one. You may be a star in high school, but a mediocre athlete in college, his experience has shown him.

Success is deep rooted in "hard work" and few reach superstar status, but if they do the rewards are great.

Johnson agrees that hard work is the key, but athletes are the ones who determine their destinies.

"You know your body better than anyone else," says Tearza. "You know what it takes. The sacrifices you want to make. There can be no distractions - just commitments - if you want to succeed. I have always been taught that if you work hard enough you will make it."

And presently Johnson's thoughts are not on her track career, but about her future. She wants to make the grades to get into the University of Michigan Law School.

"I want to be a lawyer," she says. "That's my goal."

It's one race that you know Tearza Johnson is going to win.

Baseball, basketball clinics offered

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Sports Editor

Inkster Parks and recreation will host a series of baseball and basketball clinics, thanks to a matching federal grant, recreation officials said.

There are also a host of recreation activities scheduled for the city parks.

Registration forms are available at the Inkster Recreation Complex and the city's five parks - Oak Grove, Westwood, Demby, Kennedy and LeMoine which will have summer activity and instruction baseball ($20 to sign up) along with track and field events.

Contact Ruth E. Williams, program supervisor, at 728-7530 for information.

The popular municipal pool will also open this weekend, weather permitting, and recreation officials said that swimming sessions will be offered between the hours of 1 to 2:30 p.m.; 3 to 4:30 p.m. and 5 to 6:30 p.m.

The pool will be opened daily until Aug. 19, and swim lessons are available. There is a small admission cost of 50 cents for children 17 and under; adults will pay $1 to enjoy the water.

Thanks to a matching grant, the city will also sponsor a "Youth Sports Program" which will be supervised by the recreation department.

The program is funded through a grant from the Housing and Urban Development of the federal government. Inkster Housing and Development will receive a total of $183,000 - $119,000 for the Youth Sports and $64 from matching contributions.

The grant provides for such programs as Learn to Swim; Baseball Clinic; Basketball Clinics; Karate, and after-school activities through parks and recreation beginning in September.

The program also will emphasize Say No to Drugs clinics that will be conducted by the Inkster Police Department.

"While all of the programs are intended to offer our youth some positive lifestyles choices in public housing," said recreation director Ron Wolkowicz, "it is not only for the benefit of the residents. Most of the programs offered will be for youth ages five through 21. The program will be supervised by the parks and recreation and should serve to raise the confidence and self-esteem of all youth who participate."

For more information, contact the parks and recreation offices at 728-7530.

Handling stress can ease tension in the workplace

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

When employees gather at the water cooler or employers sit around the board table, a common topic among them is stress in the workplace.

Last Wednesday, business people gathered at the Canton Chamber of Commerce meeting to develop skills to deal with the ever-present problem of workplace stress.

John Sterner of Lifeskills training was the guest speaker at the noon meeting.

"What we know about life is that it happens to everyone - the rain falls on the just and the unjust," said Sterner, the author of four books. "Stress affects all of us."

Simply put, if people can keep a good perspective on life, keep healthy, maintain control over their lives and have good relationships with family members and friends, they are better equipped to successfully deal with stress.

According to Sterner, one of the major causes of stress is change.

"Stress is the body's physical reaction to any change in the environment, and now things are changing faster than ever before," said Sterner. "In the past, the Detroit Tigers and Lions were winning and the Red Wings were losing, now that has turned around. Our enemies of the past are now our friends, and the countries that were once our friends are now our enemies. Even that changes from year to year."

Sterner said we are affected by the "fight or flight" response to stress.

"Our adrenalin flows and our hearts race in the same way that cave dwellers reacted when they faced a tiger. Now, there's no tiger, but our minds and bodies haven't caught up with the environment. Our 'tigers' take other forms," Sterner told the chamber audience. "Try a brisk walk when you experience that kind of stress."

Sterner said he credits "stuff he learned in Sunday School" for a lot of his knowledge.

"That same information is now coming to us in business books, and, you know what, it's good business. It makes money," Sterner said.

Sterner said there are four kinds of customers that sales people routinely deal with - those with money who are easy to deal with, those who have money and are hard to deal with plus those with little money who are either easy or hard to deal with.

Of the four, Sterner advises sales people to drop those who don't have much money and are hard to deal with.

"Life is too short to try to curry the favor of someone who can't help you," Sterner said, giving the only piece of cynical advice of the day.

Sterner questioned the audience, "Do you like your job enough that you would like to have your son or daughter follow in your footsteps? If not, why do you work at a job that you wouldn't want your child to have?"

The psychologist suggested that people check their job lists.

"Remember who makes the list," he said. "You do."

We are responsible for the stress in our lives, he noted.

John Sterner

The Woodlands of Van Buren, located at 39670 Ecorse Road, is loaded with features that give this public golf course a country club atmosphere, according to its managers.

To introduce metro Detroit golfers to the Woodlands of Van Buren and its amenities, the June 24 and 25 grand opening weekend will feature giveaways, coupon offers and free food beverages. The Woodlands director of Golf David Marsh and his staff will be on hand at the driving range throughout the weekend to offer tips and informal lessons. Also, visitors will be eligible to win a Ford Bronco and other prizes by taking part on the American Golf Corp. Coca Cola Red Hot Summer Sizzler Golf promotion.

Marsh said the layout will test golfers' skill.

"You have to use all of the clubs in your bag to play well. It's really two different courses. The front nine is shorter and more of a target golf game. On the back nine you need to use more of a distance game," he said.

The facility was specifically

"We give golfers details that make them feel like they are playing at a club."

- David Marsh
Woodlands golf director

designed to allow players to see what country club golf is like, Marsh added.

"We give golfers details that make them feel like they are playing at a club. Things like bent grass fairways, lockers and showers, and banquet facilities. It's a higher end course. You're treated like a member here."

Course architect Ray Hens, of Matthews and Associates, said, "This is one of the best examples of a public course where you get to play country club conditions. We designed it with large tees, green and landing areas so the greens keeper has more latitude to keep the course in peak condition."

American Golf Corp., which manages more than 200 golf courses including four of the five Detroit city courses, has the know-how to make sure golfers enjoy their visits to the Woodlands, said Rich Hohman, American Golf Corp. regional vice president.

"We strive to provide world-class service to the patrons of every course we manage. Whether it's a municipal course, a premium daily fee course, a private club or a high-profile resort, we deliver the same level of excellence to our customers," he said.

Hohman added that his company gives back to the communities it serves with each course "adopting" a local charity for which it hosts a benefit event. American Golf Corp. also promotes junior golf, especially for inner-city children, through such award winning programs as the LPGA Junior Golf Program and Hook a Kid on Golf.

The opening of the Woodlands of Van Buren was possible because Waste Management of Michigan, Inc., which owns the course, and local government are committed to serving the community, said Ron Baker, president of Waste Management.

"Waste Management is proud to be a part of this public/private partnership effort between Van Buren Township, the county of Wayne and the state of Michigan," Baker said. "Great things are possible when business and government work together to advance the goals of the community." He continued, "The opening of this championship golf course is another example of Waste Management's commitment to improving the quality of life in the communities in which it serves."

Broadway director lands role as producer in Pocahontas

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

Audiences of all ages have enjoyed his work on stage, and now the dynamic Broadway producer/director/stage manager, James Pentecost, has cast himself in a different role—one of a film producer.

Pentecost makes his motion picture debut with Pocahontas. His list of credits include the Broadway hits of Crimes of the Heart, La Cage Aux Folles, Romance, Romance, and Gypsy.

He has worked with numerous theater greats including Al Pacino, Tennessee Williams, Jule Styne, Phyllis Newman and Arthur Laurents. Now Pentecost can proudly say that he played a major role in the success of Pocahontas.

Pentecost said the actual concept for the flick began four years ago.

"The person responsible for the idea of Pocahontas was Mike Gabriel who is also one of the director's of this film," Pentecost said. "He pitched it to the Disney executives. They said, almost immediately, that they thought it was a great idea."

"It sort of coincided with their search for a story to do a Romeo and Juliet film of two different cultures. He worked eight or nine months on the film with one other person, Joe Grant."

Grant, 86, was the original story writer for Snow White and Pinochio.

"Pocahontas is a different kind of story for animation," Pentecost said. "Not everyone in the beginning was comfortable with this kind of story. Some were saying it was too series and too live action. But Joe said 'You can't do everything the same. You have to do some things different.'"

"Joe created some of these great characters in Pocahontas, Meeko and Flit."

Creating an animation takes a great deal of team effort, according to Pentecost.

"There is all different degrees, tasks, of putting something together like this," Pentecost said. "The first is doing your research. The whole visual look of the film took an entire different group of people developing the consistent style. It also takes a lot of imagination to make this happen."

Approximately 600 people worked on Pocahontas offering ideas, design concepts and character analysis.

"What I realized while working on this film is there is a big difference between producing on stage versus film," said Pentecost. "With film, there is such a collaborative effort, team work with these people. It is a great group of very passionate, articulate artists who are use to that give and take."

olulu where my folks were living. That turned out to be jumping from the frying pan into the fire because I couldn't find any work there either.

"I went into graphic arts for four years. I really wasn't enjoying it as much because where I was working the senior members of the firm were doing all the fun stuff, and I

"I know at one point in time when we were putting the movie together, we knew we needed more animal business. So I was able to pull together the other directors and story people of Aladdin and Beauty and the Beast and we said 'Help us.'"

It was that kind of generosity, give and take, that produced the outstanding special effects in Pocahontas, according to Pentecost.

"As long as you are able to keep making decisions, which is part of my job, then you are in the right direction," Pentecost said. "We had two directors on this film, and it was my job to help them find common ground because they didn't always agree on things."

What did Pentecost enjoy the most being a producer on his first animation?

"I love recording sessions and working with the actors," Pentecost said. "Seeing your first scene in color was thrilling. To go from what was an idea on paper to a story sketch to a scene that actually moved and lived and breathed. It was all thrilling."

Disney has had many successful animations throughout the years. It will be the heroine in this flick, however, which will set this film aside from the others, according to Pentecost.

"The heroine is certainly the strongest and most developed we have had," said Pentecost. "Belle was certainly a strong person in Beauty and the Beast. But, Pocahontas has more substance."

What did Pentecost learn from producing his first animation?

"You learn that no matter what age you are you can find teachers of all professions who are willing to help you," Pentecost said. "Interesting enough, asking for help was there in the movie. At the same time I had a lot of experience with what I had done previously, and I was able to use that experience with what I was doing.

JUNE 16 - JUNE 22

A live-stage show, "Pocahontas Summer Spectacular", featuring the best-loved animated characters and memorable musical moments of Disney's animated feature film Pocahontas takes place June 16-22 at the Fox Theatre in Detroit. This special event will showcase Walt Disney Pictures' all-new animated feature, Pocahontas, along with a special live stage show featuring a cast of favorite Disney characters. Tickets for the performances range from $10 to $20 per person and are available at all Ticketmaster locations. Pocahontas will begin its regular nationwide engagement on June 23. Pocahontas is the tale of the famous Native American heroine and her exciting encounters with famed British soldier, Captain John Smith.

"And, most importantly, I enjoyed working with such talented people who respected each other and learned from one another. That's something that you don't often find."

Born in Richmond Hill, New York, Pentecost grew up on Long Island and in Queens before moving to Kalamazoo, Mich. when he was 16 years old.

He attended Michigan State University where he majored in his history and theater and received a teaching degree in secondary education.

Following graduation, he spent two years with the Kalamazoo Civic Theatre, where he directed and produced a variety of shows.

In 1975, Pentecost moved back to New York to pursue a career in theater and got his first big break working as production stage manager at the New York Shakespeare Festival.

Chief Disney animator creates a powerful leader in Pocahontas

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

He was one of the chief animators on what is expected to be the hottest animation flick of all time, Pocahontas, and Ruben Aquino said he enjoyed every stroke of the pencil in creating his character.

Aquino was responsible for bringing to life Chief Powhatan, the mighty Indian and father of Pocahontas.

"I just finished work on Powhatan a few months ago," said Aquino. "It's kind of difficult to finish a character because it's like saying goodbye to a friend."

"You work for at least a year on a character. By the end of the year you feel you have really gotten to know the character. Then, all of a sudden, it's all over. You feel like you have to say goodbye to someone you shared so much with."

Aquino has the unique talent of instilling a unique personality and emotion into each of his characters he has worked on throughout the

One would think the Florida native was born with a pen or pencil in his hand, however, his initial career goal was architecture.

"I studied architecture in college," Aquino said. "When I was a kid I watched Disney animation, but I never thought I would make it a career. My father encouraged me to get into architecture because I was good in science and art."

Aquino spent four years studying architecture at the University of Pennsylvania.

"I graduated in 1975, and I couldn't find any jobs in architecture," said Aquino. "We were in the middle of a recession. I decided to go to Honolulu where my folks were living. That turned out to be jumping from the frying pan into the fire because I couldn't find any work there either."

was doing the forms."

One day an animation studio arrived in Honolulu looking for trainees. Aquino heard the door of opportunity knocking and opened it.

"They were looking for animation trainees mostly to work on commercials," said Aquino. "Then, I moved to Los Angeles and started in Hanna Barbera where I worked a year. The next year I got accepted at Disney."

Aquino's first feature film, Mickey's Christmas Carol, involved work as an "in-between."

"It was a featurette, 23 minutes in length," said Aquino. "Since then I have worked on The Great Mouse Detective. I was promoted to supervising animator on Oliver and Company.

"The next picture I had the most fun on was The Little Mermaid. I did the Sea Witch, Ursula."

The animation Aquino said he had the least fun working on was Rescuers Down Under.

"I was supervising the character Jake, and he wasn't as interesting as Ursula," Aquino said. "After Rescuers I worked on Beauty and the Beast where I created the character Maurice."

"I skipped Aladdin. I went directly to working on The Lion King."

What inspires Aquino when he is creating his character's personality?

"The voice," said Aquino. "Having a great voice is half the battle when you're doing animation. Who the character is because of the story determines how you decide to act the scene out."

As Aquino looks back at all the new friends he has created within the last five years, he said he can't pinpoint which animated character resembles him the most.

"I think there is a little of me in every character," said Aquino. "Probably the adult Simba in The Lion King is most like me. It was a character I could really identify with. It was probably the most subtle, understated character."

"Maybe it was the father/son thing that he was going through I could relate to."

TAXING MATTERS

Ruth Grayson

Know IRA rules before disposal

Many of us have IRAs. They offer the simplest — not to mention one of the few remaining — tax shelters available to the average taxpayer.

Prior to 1987, anyone who had wages could deduct money put into an individual retirement account. Even though there are now restrictions on who can deduct IRA contributions, they are still very popular.

Be aware, though, that you cannot keep your money in those accounts indefinitely. The IRS does want to recoup the tax break you received, so there are some very definite rules about taking distributions.

MOST OF YOU probably know that there are penalties for taking so called "premature" distributions. If you are under age 59½, any amount you take out is premature.

If one of the exceptions does not apply to your specific instance, the penalties tax-wise are quite heavy, so think long and hard about it. Make sure you are aware of what it will cost you before you decide.

From age 59½ until age 70½, you may take out any amounts you wish, with no additional penalty. Of course these amounts will be taxable with the rest of your income, unless you have made non-deductible IRA contributions.

BUT AT AGE 70½ you are required to take money out of your IRA account.

The required beginning date for withdrawing either the whole amount in your account or to begin receiving periodic contributions is April 1 of the year following the year in which you turn 70½.

You may take out more than the required minimum, and the "periodic" payments can be just once a year. If you wish to take out the minimum amount, it is very important that this amount is figured correctly.

If you take out less than you are supposed to, the IRS charges a penalty of 50 percent of the deficiency. Since Social Security can be taxable if there is enough other income, many people are trying to avoid any additional income.

DO NOT TRY to take out less than you should from IRAs. The penalty is just too great.

The required minimum distribution can be determined by several methods, but usually you must stay with the method you have chosen. Be sure whomever is in charge of your IRA lets you know what options you have.

The method of distribution you choose can affect the options open to your beneficiary. Be sure to take this into consideration also. If you have more than one IRA account, you

Former Mobil refinery now a distribution center

By Gary Gosselin

WOODHAVEN — Dormant much of the past year, the Mobil facility at I-75 and West Road recently reopened in its third incarnation since 1931.

Mobil has pumped $4 million into the facility, changing it from its most recent use as a grease and lubricant manufacturing plant into a fuel distribution center for southeast Michigan.

The land use has been significantly reduced, and Mobil also will be selling from 50 to 90 acres at the corner of Allen and West roads as part of the package. Ground pollution testing is taking place now and results should be available this summer.

J.G. MORRIS CO. of Trenton, one of the contractors that worked on the facility, performed about $300,000 in services at the site, designing and constructing two of the buildings.

Tim Morris, who started the company with father, Jim, and brother, Jim Jr., in 1978, said the business does design and construction work, and the two buildings at the Mobil site are pre-engineered metal, and will house state-of-the-art equipment.

The first, larger building, is a load rack facility used for loading fuel in tanker trucks for delivery. The rack facility can load a 13,400-gallon truck in 15 minutes.

THE UNIT also contains a vapor destruction unit that meets 1998 emission standards for volatile organic compounds (gas fumes which cause ozone pollution). The smaller structure is known as a foam bill of lading building, used as a truck checkpoint and houses a

Church gets Allen site

By Gary Gosselin

SOUTHGATE — The Wildwood Lanes building on Allen Road, which has stood vacant since a 12-hour fire gutted the building in 1991, is receiving new life, thanks to the Church of God.

Passers-by may have noticed that the former bowling alley, some of which remained intact, is swarming with construction workers, and that a 40-foot atrium is being added. Church Concepts Design of Chattanooga, Tenn., is the architect and builder.

"I think this building is really going to complement the community," said Pastor Ronald Mounts, of the Church of God, which currently meets in the Masonic Lodge in Taylor. "This is going to be a pretty building when we're finished."

THE CHURCH is spending $400,000 to rebuild and add-on to about half of what remained of the old brick structure. The use of what was left standing shaved the cost of this construction from an estimated $750,000 to $800,000.

What was left of the Wildwood Lanes on Allen Road in Southgate is being refurbished and added-on to. Once the project is completed in August, it will house members of the Church of God.

TAYLOR — Horizon Technology Group has acquired the 40,000-square-foot, three story "annex building" next to the former Heritage Federal Savings Bank building on Eureka Road in Taylor.

Horizon had purchased the adjacent nine-story Heritage building in November. That building listed for $2.2 million, but estimates put the sale price at about $1 million. No price was disclosed on the annex building.

Horizon has named the buildings Horizon Business Center East (the annex building) and West. The larger building has been undergoing interior renovations through the winter, and both buildings will house some Horizon departments.

"The acquisition will allow Horizon to develop a master site plan to the overall location in order to convert the properties to Class A status," said Greg Bird, president of Horizon.

Company spokeswoman Heidi Klein said there are no plans to change or move present tenants, and added that Horizon is looking at a total tenant master plan which may include a hair salon, sundry shop and possibly a workout center in the basement of the annex building.

Masco selling furniture div.

Profit performance cited

By Gary Gosselin
Staff Writer

TAYLOR — Masco Corp. Thursday officially confirmed published reports that its $1.7 billion furniture division was up for sale.

Masco said the division produced an $80 million profit from 1994 sales totaling $1.9 billion. While representing 42 percent of Masco's total sales, however, the division comprises only 14 percent of corporate profits.

THE BOTTOM line, it would appear, is that while the division makes money, it's not nearly as profitable as the remaining Masco companies, involved primarily in the home improvement and building industries.

The furniture division includes well-known brands such as Henredon, Drexel Heritage, Berkline and Lexington, among others.

Masco began acquiring the businesses individually nine years ago, and has assembled them and invested in them to provide a diverse but cohesive group.

"Our decision to evaluate a possible divestiture of these businesses is based on our belief that, while they are the world leader in home furnishings, they will not achieve the superior return criteria that we at Masco have attained in the past in our other businesses and have set for our goals for the future," Masco Chairman Richard Manoogian said in a written statement.

"A PROSPECTIVE divestiture of our home furnishings businesses would enable us to better focus on our traditional home improvement and building products businesses which have historically achieved outstanding performance."

The furniture holdings represent an investment of $1.7 billion on the Masco balance sheet, but it is believed that the current value is $1 billion, which would mean a $700 million non-cash charge to the Masco bottom line if sold.

Manoogian also said Masco is intent on keeping the holdings as a single group, and stated that the group would retain a higher value and better serve customers and employees.

THE STATED options of divestiture being looked into would be to create a new independent public company with a public stock offering, a spin-off to Masco shareholders or an outright sale.

Masco posted total 1994 sales at $4.5 billion, with net income totaling $194 million. Masco Treasurer John Nicholls Jr. said Merrill Lynch is currently working on a book outlining what the furniture division is and does. After that's finished — likely later this week — then prospective buyers may be contacted, he said, adding that there is no one in the wings ready to purchase the group at present.

Meetings outline challenge

The Detroit Red Wings have nothing on National Steel when it comes to gearing up the pep team and trying to get the players motivated to follow through on a good season.

Two groups of Great Lakes Division employees were treated to that motivation last week at the Wyandotte Theatre before a bomb threat cleared the area for the afternoon and canceled two scheduled afternoon meetings. The meetings will be rescheduled for later this month.

THE 5:30 A.M. AND 8:30 a.m. meetings went off without a hitch, said Robert Toothman, National's director of communications. He said an exchange of information was due after two quarters of record sales and a restructuring that saw a 20 percent companywide salaried workforce reduction of 400 in January.

He said the meetings, informational pep rallies, were structured in four distinct sections; National President V. John Goodwin, an industry analyst, customer videos and Goodwin again.

BASICALLY the discussion centered around the fact that the company is doing well, but needs to get better in order to remain a force in an increasingly competitive market. Toothman said there is no mention of further cuts or changes at the country's second-largest steel-maker.

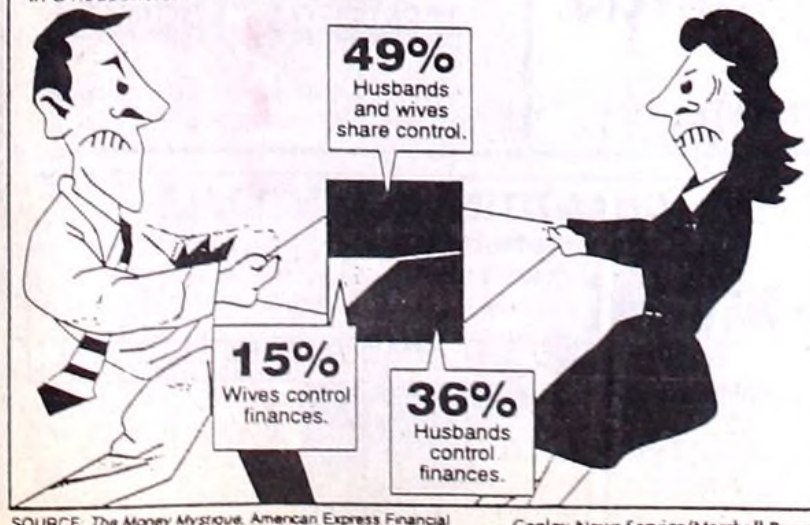

The employees were warned of mini-mills, which are able to produce hot-rolled steel at a lower cost than the integrated mills like Great Lakes.

Toothman said Goodwin outlined 10 different "super magnets," or ob-

Project eyed for Rockwood

By Shawn Lawrence
Staff Writer

ROCKWOOD — Businessman Mike Cragg recently offered to purchase four acres in the Rockwood Commerce Industrial Park for $65,000. He is hoping to relocate his trucking business from Romulus.

That parcel was listed for $100,000 as recently as March, but Rockwood City Administrator Curt Seditz said the city was really only hoping for between $80,000 and $100,000.

He said the city wouldn't haggle over a few thousand dollars; it is more concerned with introducing new businesses into the city that will provide a solid tax foundation, and possibly add to the employment base.

Cragg's company hauls goods for General Motors and Taylor Welded Blanks, among other companies. He said he would use the lot to house his maintenance facility, and also for office space. He plans to build a 5,000-square-foot building on the lot, which he hopes will be completed by fall. The city will have to work fast if it wants to accept Cragg's offer — it is only good for 60 days.

Cragg SAID easy access to I-75 was a factor in his decision to make an offer on the land. But he added that he is also interested in moving to Rockwood because the city is responsive to new businesses.

"Rockwood had a reputation in the past (as being wary of new businesses), but the city is very eager and accommodating to businesses now," Cragg said. "Curt has worked with the council and they have answered every question I've had."

Seditz is eager to remove that stigma from Rockwood.

"Development all depends on the economy,"

"We're putting up a building, but we're also designing the programs that the building will contain," said William Alvin, hospital president. "We want the new building to be patient-focused and to reflect patient and employee input."

Salon meets customer needs

In an effort to meet the needs of all age groups, Hollywoods Hair Salon owner Holly Moore has aggressively expanded her shop's services since opening for business.

Hollywoods newest offering is an "ammonia free," environmentally safe permanent hair color. This can be used to blend gray or completely change hair color. This is a new revolutionary coloring system by Biosilk that is damage- and odor-free.

Another feature is computer imaging. This service allows customers to see themselves wearing a large variety of hairstyles and hair colors. Performed by a trained cosmetologist, computer imaging also includes a skin-color analysis that helps determine how to best use makeup. The whole process takes about an hour.

The salon now is offering a special computer-imaging package that includes color analysis, a haircut, light makeup, conditioner and a perm or hair coloring. According to Moore, this is a great gift idea for birthdays, Christmas or any special occasion.

Hollywoods is a full-service Nexus salon, offering a complete line of Nexus products.

Hollywoods also offers professional nail care service by appointment only. Using an odor-free acrylic is a must for Hollywoods. Gel nails also are available.

"Hollywoods hairdressers are trained professionals with knowledge of advanced hair-dressing techniques, especially spiral wrapping, foil highlighting and sun glazing," Moore said. "Plus, the No. 1 rule here is to listen to the customer."

Hollywoods now offers a special wedding package. Call the salon for additional details.

and manufacturing facilities and updated much of the storage area and utilities.

The Woodhaven facility now employs 60 people and replaces the Dearborn facility, which was closed and consolidated with the Woodhaven facility in February.

The facility now receives fuel via pipeline from the Illinois refinery, and distributes fuel to about 300 stations with a fleet of 20 tankers. The facility supplies an area ranging from Monroe to Pontiac, and Ann Arbor to Jackson, including the metro Detroit area.

JOE MEAD, plant manager and Brownstown resident, said he not only is an employee of the company, but he also has a vested interest in Downriver, since he also grew up in the area.

"I was born in Wyandotte and grew up Downriver, and it's nice to see things done right in the community I grew up in," Mead said. "This (his background) helps add substance to Mobil's relationship with the community. Our reputation with the community speaks for itself, and we're a good corporate neighbor."

Mayor John Zarotney said the move is positive, and acknowledged his pleasure that Mobil is moving ahead with the modernization.

"Anybody that travels through Woodhaven really notices the buildings there are pretty shabby," Zarotney said. "The good news is

It is important to note that certain income does not count as "earnings" against your annual exempt amount. This income includes income from Social Security, Veterans Administration benefits, retirement pay, pensions and inheritance of gifts. It also includes interest income, income from annuities and other investment income such as stock dividends.

Earnings that must be included in these calculations are wages and net earnings from self employment. Wages include commissions, fees, vacation pay, bonuses and severance pay.
